The course Analysis of phenomenon in strategic intelligence is a 2 week course. It is organized by Polishögskolan, the Swedish Police Academy. I have been head-teacher and coordinator for the course.

The objective of the course is for the participants to learn how to choose and apply relevant structured analysis methods, tools and techniques for different problems.

The participants are intelligence analysts from all of Sweden – working in local, regional or national intelligence units.

We have had Chris Jagger (2createffects) as a co-teacher on the course on two occasions, for between 2-4 days. The participants have been very satisfied with him and his course – they have particularly enjoyed working with authentic cases.

Chris is a very dedicated and inspiring teacher. He encourages the participants to challenge themselves and try new tools, techniques and methods. We hope to have him back in future courses.
